movie theaters in Erie, Pa. began today, defense attorneys for the man accused of operating the theaters as a sex trafficking ring tried to convince the jury to lower his bail. The defense said that Mr. Zeidman was being victimized by his brother-in-law, the owner of a small theater in the city, who may have hidden a mistress in the Zeidmans' Erie home. At the opening day of the trial, Commonwealth District Attorney Joseph E. McGettigan III made a short announcement outside of the courthouse, repeating the charges that had been filed against Mr. Zeidman: that he operated businesses that were mail-order homes for four women who had been abused; he owned three of the theaters in Erie; and he lured the women to the theaters by promising them jobs and housing. The prosecutor called Mr. Zeidman's case "one of the worst I've ever seen."
