Features: Submerged Terrains: We tell you that the world of GREEN is essentially submerged and that the waters are the only escape from the eternal winter. So, not only you will have to face the plants, but your enemies will have to deal with the water. Because the bottom of the oceans is their permanent abode. Unique enemies: The plants that inhabit the world of GREEN have established their own rules of war. But don't worry, there is a reason for their actions. Their strategy is different, but you can understand it if you just give them time and train your logic. Abstract gameplay: The combat and puzzles of GREEN may be abstract, but you will always be able to understand what you are doing and what it means. You will use the plants to your advantage and in the same time you will use their properties to reach your goal. Item system: The plants use 3 different ways to attack the player: Routes: Every plant has a specific route that the player must follow. If the player slows down, he will be attacked with ropes that will paralyze him until the end of his visit. Shields: Every plant has a shield that is directly proportional to their level. If the player damages it, he will be attacked with a wound that also increases in its level every time it is dealt. Trees: The enemies have superhuman strength, the weakest is more than twice as strong as you and some of them can be used to destroy trees, blocking the routes of the other plants. Trees, Weakness, Trees, Strength and Trees, Weakness, Trees, Strength: The most important enemies of the game. Trees are trees and they have a unique combat advantage: trees can be moved. The more they are pushed back, the more the trees release their www.daniowut.com Stock-for-stock guitar. Very similar to the 2460. MFH pickups. Mahogany neck with ebony fretboard. 35" scale length, 25-1/4" neck heel, 15-1/2" body and a body depth of 12-3/4". 25 7th & 12th fret humbucking pickups and a single phase bridge. As of 07/2017 it is listed at $15,100 on Bartell's. The original owner seems to have put a very nice gloss finish on the guitar which can be seen in some of the pictures. Mostly gloss not primer. There are a few minor scuffs at the edge of one fret but those are common on these guitars when used in loops. It has new strings, new spare buttons and it has had the lining paper and a few minor repairs replaced. The original case has been trimmed and buffed up a bit but it's still in the original black case. The person who sold it to me in 2005 gave it to his kid and apparently he sold it again in 2008. I will send pics if you email me before Monday. Thanks and happy shopping! Sold :$ 775.00

Yesterday's Killer 1928 FOD 703 MP11 www.daniowut.com Together the DG-7 and the FOD are rarely seen in one guitar-we've only listed one of each in a some time. We were able to obtain a very clean one both of which are shown here. The FOD 7 has a black bone pickguard, light maple fretboard, and the FOD 7 has a black patch where the notched tuners go. Both have a late 1950-early 1960s black sunburst finish, a sunburst contrast bottom, and the 7 has a sunburst cutaway and an upscale bridge. 37" scale length, 12-3/4" body depth, and a body depth of 13-3/8". Single-gear bridge with locking saddles and no notches but the original tuners are there-there are 2 FOD 3 tuners. There are the patch thinning on the headstock as well as a few other small small chips. There are a few frets that are a little dull and a few light fret machine debosses. Player's name and serial number are in some of the photos. As of 07/2017 it is listed at $7,575 on Bartell's. The original case has been
