The experiments were carried out in a test-system with the use of mitochondrial protein phosphatase and purified from rat liver. The properties of the enzyme phosphorylation towards the purine derivatives was studied. The data are obtained on the enzymatic action of the purine derivatives on the mitochondrial phosphorylation. It has been found that all adenine analogues, i.e. hypoxanthine, adenine, 4-amino-imidazole-5'-phosphate and 2-methylpurine cause inhibition of the phosphorylation reaction. The degree of the inhibition is different and depends on the purine derivative structure. The hypoxanthine, which has maximal inhibitory activity, inhibits the phosphorylation at a concentration of 100 microM and does not inhibit the ATPase reaction.1 of 1 2 of 1 When four of Vancouver's leading young architects and engineers met to discuss the top priorities for the district, they decided that a proposal for a major renovation of Robinson Street was by far the most pressing need. At the end of Robinson Street is the Vancouver Art Gallery, which has a new expansion that opened in May 2016. It added 117,000 square feet, bringing its total footprint to 460,000 square feet. A couple of years ago, Vancouver's Revolving Door restaurant and garden closed its doors to move to a new spot. It's since reopened as a commercial and event space.
