1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to an optical device, a method of manufacturing the optical device, and a method of manufacturing an optical module. 2. Description of the Related Art An optical module having a plurality of optical devices is mounted on a substrate on which a wiring pattern is formed. In such an optical module, the optical devices (e.g., light-emitting elements) and the substrate are electrically connected by connecting members. The connecting members are provided in a specific pattern corresponding to the positions of the optical devices on the substrate and are electrically connected to the wiring pattern. The formation of the connecting members has been difficult because the connecting members need to be formed with high precision. In the prior art, an electrically conductive paste has been applied to a substrate by a printing method (see, for example, JP-A-2007-150217). When the electrically conductive paste is printed on the substrate, the electrically conductive paste is spread to the vicinity of the optical devices, thereby increasing the resistance of the connecting members.

Disruption of normal first trimester trophoblast migration in women with recurrent pregnancy loss is not dependent on interleukin (IL)-1 α . Recurrent pregnancy loss (RPL) has been linked to trophoblast dysfunction in first trimester pregnancy. To date, the reported involvement of the interleukin (IL)-1 α /IL-1 receptor (IL1R) signaling pathway in RPL remains controversial. We hypothesized that trophoblast migration may be disrupted in women with RPL due to dysregulated IL-1 α expression. Immunohistochemistry was performed on first trimester placental sections from 40 women with RPL and 40 women with first trimester uneventful pregnancy. 0cc13bf012
